

HOMESTAY RATING SYSTEM

In tourism, as well as for many other fields, quality often goes with rating. Knowing that the level of comfort can vary significantly from one accommodation to another, we have sorted our homestay accommodation in order for you to choose according to your comfort requirements.

Rudimentary comfort 1-elephant

Being the only choice in remote areas, often in ethnic minorities, the 1-elephant homestay accommodation are wide houses made of traditional wood. The bedding is done in a spacious common room with mattresses placed on the floor, along with blankets and mosquito nets.

Sanitary facilities (shower, toilet...) are in common and located outside the house. The kitchen can be situated inside or next to the bedding zone. Meals are taken together with the host family seated on mats.

The weather can be cold in winter due to the low insulation quality. Very little intimacy but large friendliness. The light sleeper travelers can sometimes be bothered by noise in the morning (family activity, animals ...)

Ban Pak Nguey, Laos

Basic comfort 2-elephant

Lodging in dormitory in mountainous but easily accessible areas, always in ethnic minorities within vast wooden houses on stilts. The bedding is done in a spacious common room with mattresses placed on the floor, along with blankets and mosquito nets. Beds are separated by a curtain or a light wall, giving some privacy.

Sanitary facilities is better than the 1-elephant accommodation and most of the time has one or two real bathrooms in common, close to the bedding zone. Hot shower is always possible.

Kitchen and dining room are separated from the bedding zone.

Muang Ngoi, Laos

Decent comfort 3-elephant

Gather houses that have usually been partially refitted alongside the resident in order to bring some more comfort to our travelers. This type of lodging offer private rooms with bed, mattress and fan. In winter it can still be slightly cold. Sanitary facilities are in common and located on the same floor as the rooms. Meals are taken together with the host family on a table with chairs.
